To-Do Checklist

Introduce Yourself

- In this area, we will introduce ourselves so that we can become acquainted with each other. We will also use this area to discuss some of our common interests in studying the development of children.

Reading

- We will read about how primary relationships affect our social development and formation of self-concept.

Discussion

- We will discuss the main concepts identified in our reading related to the importance of social relationships to the development of our self-concept.

Seminar

- During seminar this week, we will discuss the expectations of the course as described in the syllabus, an overview of course activities, and how social relationships are used in the development of self-concept.

Final project Information

- To plan for your final project, read this description and use it to create a schedule for yourself.